

We are all Different, Which Makes Us the Same Show Notes for The Fun Road Podcast:

What do you think of when you think of the unknown? Does the word “fear” come to mind?

We have fear in a lot of things, especially when it comes to the unknown. Unknown cultures, different foods, new people, and the list goes on. But, is that fear limiting you? Creating fear of the unknown can be planted like a seed. You can have that thought of fear planted in your mind, water that thought, and suddenly its taken full bloom.

We generally are afraid of what's different than what we are. Who we are is not the only way or the correct way. We shouldn't want the whole world to be like us. Your life can become limited when you close your life to other cultures, places, people, etc. When you can see the beauty in everything, your life becomes more beautiful!

On the flip side of fear, you have love. Love is letting go of fear. You can find love everywhere and anywhere. We want you to know that you can relate to anyone in the world, no matter where you go. And trust us, we have been a lot of places! Take things at face value, take people at face value. Learn to love seeing the world from other people's eyes.

Your life will be more abundant and filled with love is what you work on is being yourself. How you treat others, how you look at other people, other cultures, and other lifestyles. Don't live in fear and hate. Live with love and acceptance.

Be open to new experiences, and you will be surprised at how beautiful the world is. Everyone is different, which makes us all the same!
